THE WEATHER.

Tonight fair, cooler. Saturday partly cloudy.

Talked to the Ticker.

In a small village in Wisconsin, along the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, lived an old man who had not visited the depot very many times, but happened to stroll in just when the agent was out after the mail. He seated himself and suddenly the telegraph instrument began to click very rapidly. As the instrument did not cease nor the agent return, the old man became impatient. He had only an indistinct notion of the telegraph and telephone. Stepping over to the instrument he loudly said:

"The agent is not here, so please wait a minute, and I will call him."

Transforms Vegetables.

Not satisfied with the usual grafting adopted by horticulturists, a Frenchman, M. Mollard of Paris, has started in to transform vegetables. Already he has succeeded in turning a radish into a potato—according to a recent consular report.

Give Money to Domestic.

Among the celebrations connected with the "name day" of Francis Joseph, of Austria, is the giving of money to servants long in the service of one family. Eleven women receive $62.50 each, and others $41.50.

Flight of Robins.

For days millions of robins flew southward over Yuba, Nevada, and Placer counties, California, in successive great clouds recently. At night they alighted on trees, shrubs and rocks, and at daybreak resumed their flight. Nothing has ever been seen in California like it.

Lawyers in British Cabinet.

It is recorded as a remarkable fact in England that eight members of the new liberal cabinet are lawyers, the legal profession thus having nearly half of the whole ministry. Such a proportion would excite no surprise and break no records in America.

Greediness of Herons.

A trapped heron, weighing scarcely four pounds, was found to have swallowed two trout, one weighing two pounds and the other a pound and a half. Another heron, which was only four months old, had put away three small trout—total weight two pounds and a quarter—at a single meal.

Pays for False Advertising.

Leo Cohn, a merchant of Spandau, Germany, advertised the sale of a stock of goods at less than half cost. A buyer proved that more than half the cost price had been charged for an article he had bought, and the merchant was fined $45.

To Be Guarded Against.

As a bit of iron near the mariner's compass will deflect the needle and possibly cause the loss of the ship, just so does some hidden element of self-interest or some latent passion commonly make shipwreck of human reasoning.

A BRILLIANT WEDDING LAST NIGHT

Miss Mai Fare Works, a Popular Young Lady of This City is Joined in Holy Wedlock to Mr. John Willis of Hugo I. T.

The city of Amarillo has never witnessed a more beautiful ceremony, than was performed last night, when Rev. C. N. N. Ferguson, pastor of the Methodist church united in marriage Miss Mai Fare Works of this city and Mr. John Willis, of Hugo, I. T. In the pageantry, with which men and women like to surround these solemn rites, the wedding was perfect. The bride, popular from her girlhood in this city, was never more lovely, and the groom, though not so well known here, was, by the freemasonry of "all the world loves a lover," the favored friend of all who made his acquaintance. The girl friends, with their escorts, completed a picture of youth, beauty and high hope.

Long before the arrival of the wedding party, the church was thronged. The wedding colors, green and white, had been elaborately used in the hangings which made a secluded nook of the choir alcove for the musicians. Potted plants, palms and festoons of smilax made a setting of rare beauty. In front of the hangings was a floral horse shoe secured to the sides and ceiling by long streamers of white ribbon. The section of the church, in front of the alcove were set apart with festoons of smilax, for the relatives of the bride and groom.

At half past eight, Mrs. Horace Gooch at the piano and Miss Mamie Trigg with violin accompaniment, struck the sweet clear notes of "All For You." For half an hour they rendered selections from Cavalleria Rusticana, Il Trovatore, and others. At nine o'clock the ushers, spread streamers of white canvass down the aisles to the vestibule and the musicians struck into the opening strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. Then preceded by the ushers, two by two Messrs. Terry Thompson, W. A. Smith, B. C. D. Bynum, George Works, R. P. Yancey and W. E. Freeman, the groom entered on the arm of the best man, Mr. Hughes. The ushers arranged themselves in semi-circle and waited the coming of the bridesmaids, Misses Kate Williams, Bernice Russell, Jean Blackburn, Floride Ware, Lutie Wood and groom's sister, Miss Willis, followed by the bride and Maid of Honor, Miss Trulie Works.

The bridesmaids ranged in front of the ushers, the groom met the bride at the head of the aisle, and, standing beneath the great floral horse shoe, while the musicians rendered softly, "The Angels Serenade," they spoke the words, before the Rev. Ferguson, that made them man and wife. The musicians then started the trumpet strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and the bridesmaids, on the arms of the ushers led the party down the aisle, and out of church, where carriages were in waiting to convey the party to the brides home.

COSTUMES OF THE WEDDING PARTY.

The bride wore a princess gown of white radium silk, over taffeta with lace. The veil edged with lace, was caught at the brow with orange blossoms and swept in filmy folds over her shoulders to the floor.

She carried a brides bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley. The Maid of Honor, Miss Trulie Works, wore white organdie with lace ruffles and a wide green girdle, she wore a wreath of white carnations and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Miss Willis, white organdie with lace and a green girdle and wore a wreath of smilax.

Miss Russell, white chiffon organdie with a lace waist.

Miss Williams, white organdie with a lace waist and tucked skirt; Miss Blackburn, white flowered organdie with ruffles; Miss Ware, white over silk, with lace insertion in the skirt; Miss Wood, princess gown.

All the brides maids wore wide green girdles add wreaths of smilax. The brides favors to the brides maids, were gold hat pins, engraved M. W. The ushers wore evening suits and white gloves.

After the ceremony, the brides parents gave a delightful home reception to the bridal party and the young people friends of the bride. The wedding colors were used throughout the house, in white streamers and festoons of green. Over the doorway from the reception hall was a large W in white incandescent lights gleaming out from a heart of smilax. In the punch room streamers of white, intertwined with smilax, united in a beautiful silk shade in the center of the room; under which was the punch table, presided over by Miss Juanita Travis.

On tables around this room were the bride's presents. In the dining hall were festoons of smilax united at the center in a white bell overlaid with roses, and in the center of the table underneath was the handsomely decorated bridal cake. During the evening music was discoursed, which well fitted the laughter, congratulations and high spirits of the party. The refreshments for the evening were brides cake and ices, the latter in the form of brides roses, in the wedding colors. Near the close of the evening's pleasure, the bride cut the cake, and after her each girl in turn tried her fortune for the hidden good luck pieces. Miss Lutie Wood captured the ring, which, according to the old yet favorite legend, makes her the next bride. Miss Lelia Maynard became the owner of the needle, and, according to the same old legend, will spend her life in single blessedness. It was a late hour when the many guests gave their last congratulations, best wishes and farewells.

The wedding gifts received by young couple speak much for their esteem among their friends. Sparkling cut glass, hand painted china, art silverware and costly bric-a-brac, with the many other gifts of handsome furniture and rugs, will help the young bride in making her home. Mr. and Mrs. Willis left today via the Denver for their future home in Hugo, I. T. Mr. Willis is a prominent young lawyer of that city and has a host of friends who will give him and his bride a hearty welcome to their new home.

Dr. J. J. Hanna specialist on diseases of eye, ear, nose and throat, is in his office in Eberstadt building on Mondays Thursdays and Saturdays. 35tf.
